

Do you need to enable “Human Centered Innovation” where you work?

We’ve got you covered from A to Z

It’s no secret: Innovation has been a top CEO priority for over a decade. To tackle this priority, most organizations start with new idea campaigns and design thinking.

But you know it takes much more than that.

You know that being innovative, thinking innovatively, and acting innovatively has a set of competencies distinct from subject matter expertise:

- Enabling innovation means more than just producing great new products; it means getting everyone to add value by doing things new, better or different in their everyday work
- Energizing people to be innovative takes a deep level of intrinsic motivation and meaning
- Thinking innovatively is a cognitive skill that people practice in very different ways
- The process for innovation needs to be emotionally satisfying as well as mentally rigorous
- Building collaborative, innovative teamwork requires psychological safety as much as brainpower

“ I was fortunate enough to execute a departmental turnaround using the Values Centered Innovation framework. Not only did we accomplish phenomenal outcomes, the practice of disciplined collaboration and innovation carried over into every facet of our lives.

P T Navendra, Head of Data Services,
HD Vest Financial Services

VCI's courses are based on original research started over 35 years ago by William C. Miller when he was Head of Innovation Management at the Stanford Research Institute. They also feature Debra R. Miller with abundant experience as a corporate executive and business coach. For decades, they have taught and applied the core course material with corporate leaders and professionals in over 20 countries.

Are all of your online courses available now?

While we have a good selection of online courses available now, we're continually launching new ones (see the next pages for more details). VCI's online courses are self-paced and are available across all devices. After enrolling, each person will have 12 months of unlimited access to each course.

Do you also offer blended learning, virtual and onsite workshops?

Yes. We support a variety of delivery needs: self-paced, blended learning, virtual and onsite workshops, and certification of internal trainers, facilitators and coaches.

How can internal trainers, facilitators and coaches get certified in your modules?

Certifying your people to be either trainers or coaches for innovation is one of our strengths. We can use a combination of online courses, onsite workshops, and offsite coaching. Each certification program includes downloadable videos, PPT slides, workbooks, exercise materials and more.

Can you customize courses for our organization?

Yes. We enjoy customizing either the online courses or onsite workshops to fit your organization's needs. We can also customize workshops that your trainers and facilitators lead.

Do you offer corporate discounts?

Yes, we have a quantity discount structure for our online courses. We'll also work with you to get the most out of your budget, while creating a win-win for everyone.

How do I access all of the courses you offer?

We're glad you asked! We offer a fully-integrated set of modules to build innovation capabilities across your organization. Any time you want to view our full range of courses, just click on the "Public Courses" tab at the top of our eSchool.

“ VCI is a breath of fresh air: authentic, knowledgeable, responsive, supportive and patient. Far from fueling a dependency on them for consulting or delivery services, they have built an impressive suite of support resources for greater individual and business success.

Ginger Coyle, Sr. Org Dev Specialist, Fortune 500 aerospace firm
